VOTER NOTICES ARE DISTRIBUTED TO VIRGINIA'S CITIZENS THIS WEEK

RICHMOND, VA—Virginia voters will receive notices in the mail regarding their polling locations for the November 8 General Election beginning this week.

“Districts and polling locations have changed for some voters as part of the redistricting process following the 2020 Census,” Department of Elections Commissioner Susan Beals said. “We encourage every voter to check their polling location on their voter notice.”

District boundaries for federal, state and local offices are redrawn every 10 years following the census. The 2022 election is the first November general election for which the new districts resulting from the 2020 census will be in effect.

All registered Virginia voters will receive a notification containing their district information and polling location regardless of whether any changes were made.

Separate polling locations for town elections will not be listed because town elections have been moved from May to November and will be held November 8.

Virginia maintained all its 11 Congressional districts following the 2020 U.S. Census, though many boundaries were altered due to demographic shifts. The Virginia Supreme Court unanimously approved the new district boundaries

Voters can also find their district and polling location information on the Virginia Department of Elections website (<https://vote.elections.virginia.gov/VoterInformation/Lookup/polling>).

VOTER NOTICES ARE DISTRIBUTED TO VIRG

... VIRGINIA voters will receive notices in the mail regarding their polling locations for the November 8 General Election beginning this week.

The 2022 polling locations have changed for some voters as part of the redistricting process following the 2020 Census. Department of Elections Commissioner Sharon Davis said, "We encourage every voter to check their polling location on their voter notice."

Redistricting for the federal, state and local offices are redrawn every 10 years following the census. The 2022 election is the first redrawn general election for which the new districts resulting from the 2020 census will be in effect.

All voters of Virginia will receive a mailed voter notice containing their district information and polling location regardless of whether any changes were made.

Copy and polling location for both elections will not be final until November 8. The election will be held November 8.

Virginia's 11th Congressional District is being redrawn following the 2020 Census. The new boundaries were drawn by the Virginia State Court. The new boundaries will be in effect for the 2022 election.
